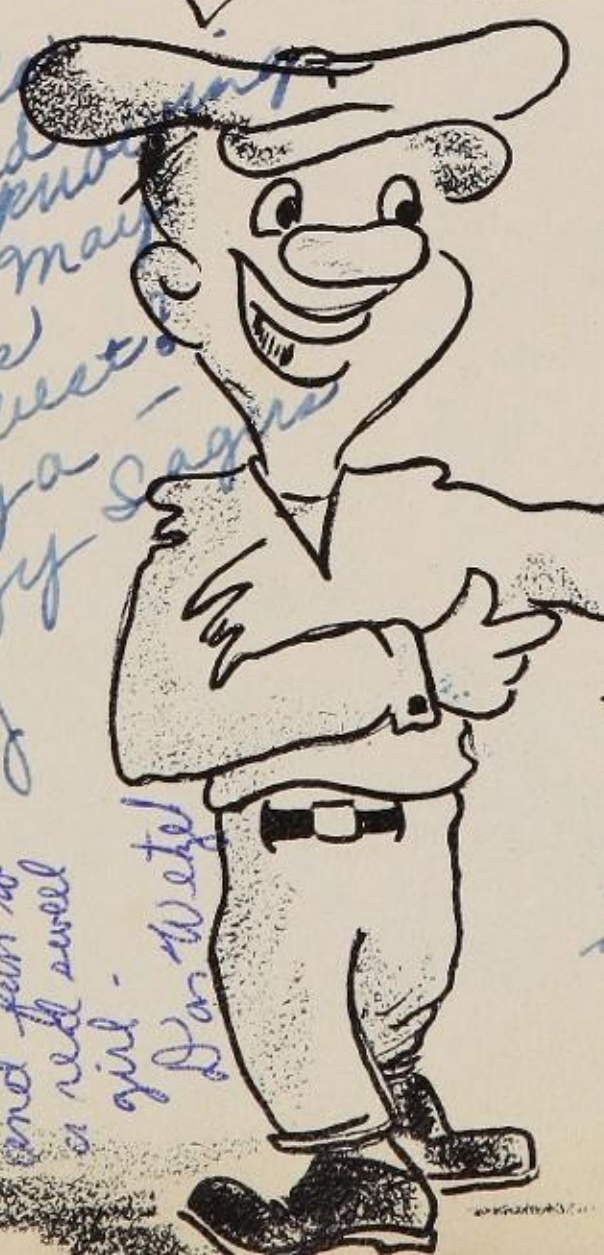
hi there!

i'm the spirit of north side high. although i may not look it, i've been around for 70 years, and during that time i've been acquainted with your fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, and many other relatives. i'm in every phase of school activities, and right now there's one in particular i want to show you. so let me be your personal guide as we tour the . . .



foreword

a journey into a north side student's heart will reveal a spirit unique among all spirits. it has the aggressiveness of a prize fighter, the delicacy of a butterfly, the grandeur of the taj ma-hal, and the humility of a freshman.

like many things in life its causes are unknown but its examples are many. it is the silken whisper of the memories winding through the halls, like a ghost on an eternal trek. it is the crash, clang, and roar of students in a pep rally exclaiming, for all to hear, their pride and faith in their school. there is the sight of hundreds of faces contorted by the bitter taste of defeat and the ecclesiastical feeling when victory is gained. the spirit is exemplified by the relationship between teacher and student resembling that of nature and animal.

like the spirit of notre dame and the marine corps, it is a tradition; a tradition that has lasted through the years, and will continue on, becoming greater every year. this year is but one step toward greater heights, as the north side spirit continues onward to a goal, that will be reached when the last grain of sand drops wearily in the great hour glass above.

fish day

the tradition of fish day is as old as north side itself when every year the seniors take time out from their work to acquaint the fish with this tradition.

the day dawns with the underclass preparing themselves in rags, hose, shortskirts and what have you. amidst the teasing and heckling they manage to reach the "ole school on the hill" by buses, cars and even a few walk.

of course these mean seniors must have some sort of refreshment and it just so happens the "fishes" bring gum, candy and even a few smart ones close up the seniors with a few tricks, but of course the hand of the law, our sheriff, seize the wise ones. the most common drill put to use is "air raid," where the lowly ones hit the deck.

comes lunch and if the fish are lucky enough to have an appetite they scramble under the tables and prepare to eat as well as be kicked. the climax is feeding the seniors their well deserved lunch.

the grand finale commences when the little ones are marched into the auditorium where they must sit in the aisle until recovering the "north side spirit brand." as the ceremonies pass the freshmen feel they become a part of the school and employ the name of sophomores to be a part of north side from then on.

senior leroy hill screams commands at fish barbara berry, but she just laughs it off.

hit the dust podner, jamie's mowing 'em down.

dig this crazy bop!

jimmy macfarland laughs it up with a little fish.

pete the python hunt

don and nancy have mistaken a garden hose for pete!

sergeant joe friday — oops! we mean jan ballard — looks for fingerprints on pete's door.

glady, frankie and nancy poise their weapons ready for the kill.

when pete the python escaped from his forest park home early in september the north side journalism department resolved to bring him back dead or alive. with cries of "save the old folks and protect the children" eager students made their way to the south side with knives, guns, sticks, clubs and their own version of what the well dressed hunter should wear. although they didn't find pete, all treked home weary but happy, resolving that next time they would do better.

I wish you all the happiness in the world.
